

Post-Op Bra Suggestions:

Please note: These are just bra suggestions. You do not have to purchase a bra listed in this document. Ideally, your post-op bra should have no under wire, a front zipper (for convenience—hook and eye closure is also OK), thick straps for comfort and a lower elastic band that is positioned below the incision sites to prevent irritation. When used correctly, surgical compression bras will reduce swelling, protect, and stabilize the breast area during the surgery recovery period. Depending the return policy, we sometimes recommend the purchase of two bras due to the swelling factor.

The Last Resort Bra #313801

If you've tried every bra out there and still bounce, try this one. Our testers say it completely eliminates bounce. Literally, you won't move, and that's a beautiful thing. Sturdy nylon/spandex construction. We recommend this as the workout bra of choice for D, DD and DDD cups who don't want to bounce at all.
